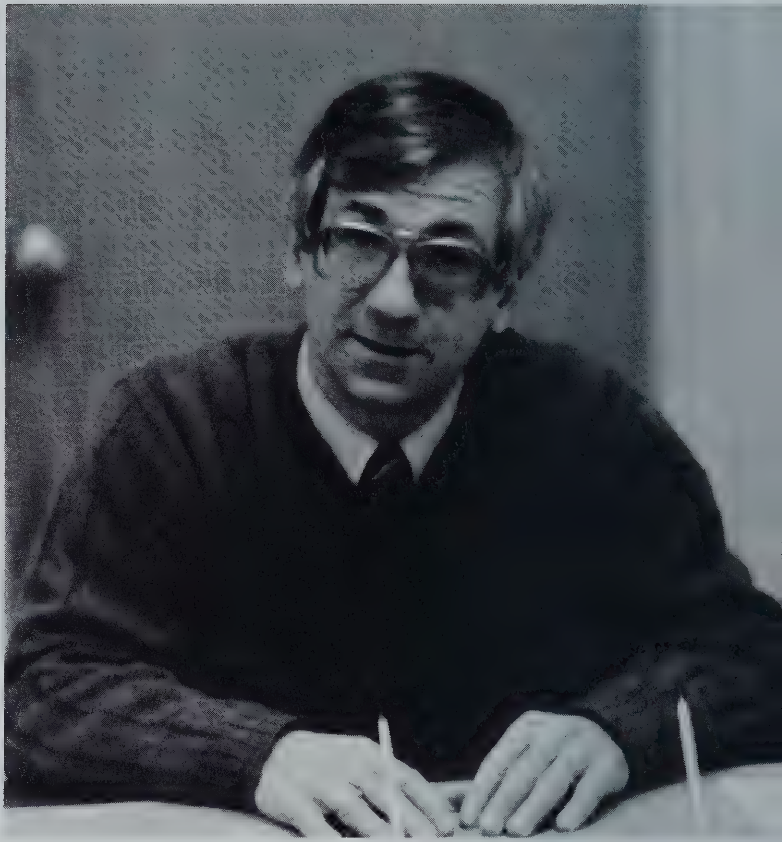
Principal



Dear Members of the Class of 1985:

Having successfully completed all the requirements, you have earned your high school diploma. I hope that the knowledge and skills that you have acquired at Mansfield High School will assist you as you embark on the next phase of your life.

Best wishes for a happy and productive future.

Sincerely,

Edward A. Rosa

Assistant Principal

To the Class of 1985, I would like to offer you two Irish Blessings:

"May the hand of a friend be always near you"

"May the good Lord take a likin to ye, but not too much and not too soon"

J. Spencer Kelley
Assistant Principal

School Administration

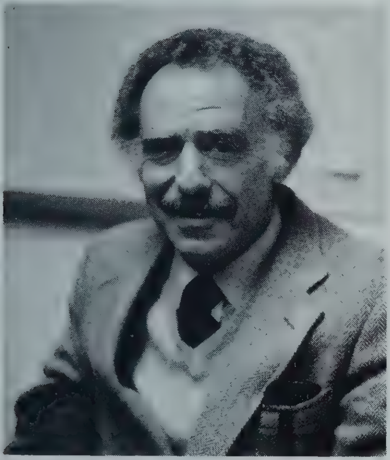
To the Class of 1985:

Over the past several years you have worked, and studied, practiced and played, and grown - grown mentally as well as physically - and now you are ready to begin a new phase of your lives.

For some of you this will mean a job and its responsibilities. For others this will mean college and further years of study and preparation. Whatever course you take, it is my sincere hope that your years at Mansfield High School have prepared you to meet and deal with the challenges that life will present.

Sincerely,

Robert V. Barbarisi
Superintendent of Schools



Not too far in the future, you will be involved in at least one possible life time activity. To avoid a life of quiet desparation, live it, master the skills connected with it, produce something of value as a result of it.

Principal's Graduation Remarks

Superintendent Barbarisi, Members of the School Committee, Reverend Clergy, Members of the Faculty, Parents, Relatives and Friends of the graduates, and most importantly graduates of the Class of 1985.

Today the 174 young ladies and gentlemen in front of me have reached a milestone in their lives. In a few short minutes they will receive their high school diplomas which indicates successful completion of twelve years of classroom instruction. However, while this diploma does symbolize the end of one experience, it also heralds the beginning of another. Whether they have chosen to continue their education, to enter the armed forces, or to begin working, these graduates will find this next phase of their lives dramatically different than their high school years. They will be asked to assume more responsibility and perform at a higher level than ever before. This will not be easy but it is certainly a challenge they are quite capable of meeting.

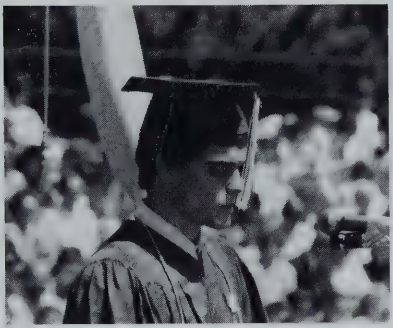
Graduates, there is no question that today is special in your lives. You are approaching the threshold of a whole new set of opportunities where the only limits are those which you place upon yourself. You are an intelligent, talented, enthusiastic group of young men and women who are encouraged to set high standards of performance for yourselves and then dedicate your efforts to achieving them. Because to do otherwise would be a shameful waste of talent.

Thomas Wolfe said, "If a man has talent and cannot use it, he has failed. If he has a talent and uses half of it, he has partly failed. If he has talent and learns somehow to use the whole of it, he has gloriously succeeded and won a satisfaction and triumph few men ever know." On this most joyous occasion I challenge each of you to win this satisfaction and triumph by making the ultimate use of your own personal talents.

I'd like to close by congratulating the parents of the graduates for the support and encouragement they've provided during the past twelve years. And to the graduates I give my fondest wishes for success and hope you will always have pleasant memories of Mansfield High School.

Thank you.

Valedictory



Stephen A. Tupaj

Ladies and gentlemen of the school committee, Mr. Barbarisi, Mr. Rosa, Mr. Kelley, faculty members, parents, friends, and relatives, it is with great pleasure that we welcome you on this special occasion and thank you for everything you have done to make this graduation day possible. My words, however, are directed toward a group of special young men and women that I have yet to mention, a gruop that I feel especially fortunate to be a part of. I speak of you, my fellow classmates, Mansfield High School's class of 1985, and I congratulate you on your achievement.

In many ways I consider today to be the most important day of our lives because today we take upon ourselves the greatest responsbility of all. That responsibility is our freedom, our freedom to accomplish our goals, create our dreams, and discover ourselves. As you leave the nurturing environment of Mansfield High School, people will no longer watch over you asking the question "how are you?" Instead, emphasis will be placed on a new, more infinite question, "who are you?" In answering this question, we must not settle for a worldly defination which merely includes the names of colleges, business titles, and salary figures. Surely we must go beyond Dostoevksy's "two times two equals four world", a world in which life is reduced to a system of scientific laws, mathematical formulas, and endless routine. And it is that which does lie beyond this world that I want to speak to you about today.

Inside each and every one of you there exists a world that contains much more substance than the "real" world around you. We must not forget this inner world nor neglect the vitalness of its development. This inner world is the home of your imagination. It is a world where permanent ideals, absolutes, and beauty reside. But most importantly, inside of you is the source of your freedom to become and your power to love.

The importance of looking inward for what is real as well as outward becomes clearer if we consider the present age in which we live. Unfortunately, we do live in a "two times two equals four world". The price we have paid for progress is a world that no longer contains any specialness or wonder. One hundred years ago men could at least gaze upon the moon for example and tell themselves that some things are unconquerable by men. Now it appears that nothing is reserved as special or sacred. We have abandoned tradition and relaxed our moral standards to give us the illusion that we are freer. True, perhaps we are freer to run away from our problems, but in no way does our world free us to obtain a sense of specialness and dignity amidst the disorder we witness in our lives each day.

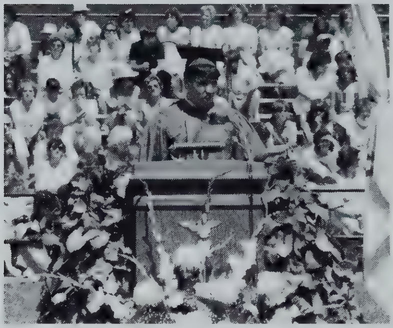
All responsibility, therfore, falls on us as individuals to establish an order, a specialness, and an innocence from within. For I believe that the amount of freedom you will possess to meet life head on and come out on top depends on the degree of order you can establish in your life that is separate from the rest of the world. Indeed, you must define your values that are linked to the ideal as well as the real. Then, with the ability to believe in yourself and perhaps even in something higher than yourself, you may pursue your goals, experience successess and failures, try different paths, and continue to learn about yourself without completely yeilding to those forces which destroy the specialness in you.

I know each of you carry this capacity because each of you was a child once. And as a child you greeted each day with innocence and wonder. For a child, each day is new. He does not depend on worldly explanations of things but depends on his own ability to discover abd evaluate with an open mind. Those of you who in the coming years will give birth to the world of the future must remember this. It is important that a child must live in an ideal world, and his family must act as a buffer between his ideal world and the real world until the time is right. I know that I presonally am thankful to have had such wonderful parents who took care of my inner needs as well as my physical needs. And I am sure I speak for many here in front of me. And as the child grows he comes to realize that his world does not reflect the real world. He looses his innocence and must make adjustments. But does that mean he must give up his separteness that has made his life so special? Should he not fight to maintain his individuality? I believe that his struggle to remain separate, to rise above blind conformity, and to retain that part of childhood that can look at life with innocent eyes, an open mind, and an open heart can be the first true act of adulthood. I believe that it is this childlike perception of life that the Bible refers to with the passage that states: "Truly, I say to you, whoever does not receive the kingdom of God like a child shall not enter it." (Mk. 10.15)

Lastly, I've left out the most powerful, the most infinite, and the most important capacity that you can discover inside you. And because it is infinite, I cannot define it, so I must leave it to you. But this much I can say, the word is Love. Because love exists, understand that this journey you are about to undertake is not a selfish one. True fulfillment will come when you have the ability to take that inner completeness, that inner specialness, and give it out to the world without any need to receive anything in return. Then you are free. And what can we do right now to begin our journey? Well, it has to do with letting go and flying upward. To whistle in corridors without caring what people think, to send flowers to a special friend for no reason whatsoever, to climb trees, to decorate a person's house and put balloons around his bed while he is asleep, these offerings will let others know that, yes, there is still a specialness and wonder and love in this world. It is you.

I guess what I'm trying to say is don't miss out on the greatest discovery of all as you make progress toward your goals. Discover your true self.

Salutatory



Brad Belasco

Welcome to today's commencement.

Upon accepting our diplomas, we the class of 1985, become the newly inducted members of a complex and powerful society. A society which, although democratic, has many times been accused of inhibiting the individuality of its members. In the past people have withdrawn from a society in an attempt to escape this inhibition. The brilliant writer Henry David Thoreau retreated to his pondside cabin to "move away from public opinion, from goverment, from religion, from education, from society," and from an original identity. In 1845 Thoreau must have examined his society and its problems and found nothing significant keeping him from relinquishing his "social duties," In 1985 we live in a changed environment. We cannot, in good conscience, withdraw from our society. In light af America's devastating nuclear potential, we must now address societal problems and assume a well defined role in our communities, while at the same time trying to establish an individual indentity.

The nuclear age should have created in us a sense of moral obligation, a commitment to familiarize ourselves with and maintain possible answers to, the issues facing our country. By ascertaining relative importance of the many issues facing our society, we can formulate possible answers to the crucial problems, stand by our views, and actively communicate our ideas, while keeping an open mind towards other opinions. Ofon an issue impules a degree of familiarality with the issue. We should, find ourselves in the undersided catagory on a critical societal problem. Apathy is a vise that we cannot afford to succomb to in a time when one misunderstanding can mean annihilation.

Dealing with our country's problems involves our accepting societal roles. Roles which have often been recognized as stifling individuality. We are faced with the task of simultaneously satisfying social expectations and the need for a personal identity. Our views on important issues will not be recognized unless we have society's respect.

Our generation is faced with a difficult task. That is, the problem with realizing our creativity, identity and purpose, while exerting a constant effect to preserve our species.

We have been placed in this situation by a group of people who introduced the nuclear age before we were born. Perhaps the developers of the bomb had good intentions. Perhaps they were unaware of the consequence of thier work. In any case us being spiteful towards them is an exercise in futility.

We must now deal with the future without anger towards the past. By facing our country's problems analytically we will survive one of mankind's greatest mistakes.

Salutatory

Welcome to the graduation ceremonies of the Class of 1985. At the conclusion of our four years at Mansfield High School, we tend to be overcome with feelings of sadness and loss as we realize our stable way of life has come to an end. Indeed, these emotions are not without cause. Friendships and bonds that have been formed over our twelve years together will gradually dissipate after today's ceremonies. In addition the weekend excursions, private jobs, activities, and thoughts that we have shared will become only memories. In losing these friendships we will be giving up a source of counsel and trust that all of us have depended upon at one time or another.

These feelings of loss are coupled with, if not strengthened by, feelings of fear and uncertainty towards the years ahead. With the end of public schooling, we have lost our secure environment and we are forced to contend with the real world. We will no longer have everyday activities scheduled by the school computer - when to eat lunch, when to go to the bathroom. Nor, can we depend on administrators, teachers, and even peers to make our decisions. Our graduation will mark the end of this reliable, consistent lifestyle. Also, we must realize that even the relationships we built with the staff and faculty are coming to an end. In my experience many teachers have surpassed their responsibilities by displaying flexibility, understanding, concern, and, at times, even friendship. In a way, we are losing a surrogate family.

Truly, graduation can be viewed as a reminder of the many losses we will experience within the next year. As each of us receives our diplomas, giving us the freedom to follow our respective paths, we are torn between the desire to take advantage of our independence and our need to hang on to family and friends. Recognizing the difficulty of the latter, many of us will become dejected and even cry by the end of the afternoon. Yet admidst the tears, we must not forget that today, we are attending our commencement. This day is the commencement of our future, the beginning of new relationships, new environments and new responsibilities.

As we leave Mansfield High School to attend college or find jobs, we will evitably meet new people and once again form strong bonds. Although these relationships will be built on the experience with the old, they will differ greatly. For some of us, it will be the first time we detach ourselves from the "small town" life and encounter people of different backgrounds, cultures and possibly countries. These friendships will be essential in more than one way. First, the constant exchange of ideas involved in mature relationships will ultimately broaden our perspective of humanity and increase our awareness of each other's differences. Secondly, the exposure we'll have to this diversity can only help to lessen the prejudices formed by our many years of conformity and insulation. Thirdly, and most importantly, our interaction with fresh personalities will provide us the challenges that force us to develop our best traits. These same challenges will allow us to gain self-confidence and become closer to the acquisition of our individuality. For these reasons we must realize that our friendships will not end, but will remain in our memory, and we should look forward to the benefits of future ties.

The future will also be a time of added responsibilities. In the years to come we will finally have the independence to make our commitments, decisions, and goals. When placed into the unfamiliar environments of college or a full time job, we can at last create our own schedules and priorities as well as discipline ourselves to succeed. Still, our new surroundings and sudden freedom should not intimidate any of us. Mansfield High School has prepared each of us to handle the change with maturity and enthusiasm. We must be eager to apply our supply of knowledge, talent and experience to a world outside of M.H.S. Also, by taking on difficult responsibilities we will discover aspects of our personality barely uncovered in high school. The many opportunities for our growth and achievement should not cause fear, but excitement. For, we, as high school graduates, can begin to plan our contributions to society.

Obviously our education and development have not come to an end, but will continue and intensify as we mature. For this reason, high school must not be seen as the final step, but as a foundation for the challenge that faces us. Graduation is then, a ceremony commemorating not only our past, but perhaps even more significantly, our future. We the class of 1985 invite you to join in celebrating this happy occasion.

1984 MASSACHUSETTS ACADEMIC
DECATHLON

OVERVIEW

The 1984 Massachusetts Academic Decathlon represents the first year that teams of eleventh and twelfth grade students from all over the state have been invited to compete in a series of ten competitive events measuring academic strengths. These events include tests in Economics, Fine Arts, Grammar and Literature, Mathematics, Physical Science, Social Science, Biological Sciences and the Super Quiz-a team event held before a large audience. In addition, there are communication tests which include the writing of an essay, the delivery of a prepared and impromptu speech and an oral interview. Students will be given awards based on both individual and team achievements. The top scoring school will then compete in a national contest in California in April, 1985. The Decathlon the unique aspects of the program is the fact that each six member team must be composed of two students from each of the "A", "B", and "C" grade point categories. These students are coached by high school staff members who devote many hours to helping their students prepare for the rigors of Competition Day. The philosophy and format of the Massachusetts Decathlon is based on a model developed in California seventeen years ago. In 1982, the first nationwide United States Academic Decathlon was held. In 1983 and 1984, Cambridge Rindge and Latin represented Massachusetts in this contest.

Remember When...

It was a cold Saturday morning on November tenth in Sharon. The Mansfield Hornets were reeling from two tough-to-take losses to rivals Oliver Ames and North Attleboro. Sharon, on the other hand, was on a roll having won their last three contests and establishing themselves as a tough team. Mansfield had been established by local papers as a firm twenty-one point underdog. The Hornets took the field at approximatly 12:45 and proceeded to dominate the Eagles all afternoon, including a 60 touchdown sprint in the second qaurter by rookie senior Mike Smith and a two yard touchdown plunge by capt. Mike Farinella. It was by far the Green's best overall performance, exhibiting the character they showed all year as a never-quit squad. they were led by captains Craig jWilson, Mike Farinella and Tom Connor, who exemplified the never-say-die attitude of the Hornet squad showed.

Thanksgiving Day the Hornetss employed coach Ron Reardon's "Vice Theory" and tightened the vice around the Bowl bound Foxboro Warriors. Playing their best defensive game of the season, Mansfield held the rival Warriors to a tight 6-0 Foxboro lead at the end of the first half. Despite the fact that Foxboro went on to win 21-0, scoring once in each of the next two quarters, Mansfield hung tough and gave the Warriors their toughest challenge in the Hock in 1984. Head coach George Kelly termed 1984 a "successful year" and said that he was happy with the way his squad used the talent they possessed to it's extent. He cited "strong leadership from this year's senior members of the team" as one key to the success of the Green.

Receiving this years awards were several of Mansfield's best. The coaches award for spirit went to starting forward Martine DuBeau. Starting Senior forward Susan Parsons received the "Unsung Hero" award for her ability to always be there when the offense needed her. Sue's skill was outstanding and she finished third for overall points for the 1984 season. Danielle LaMarre, senior co-captain and starting link was selected as this year's. Receiving the Sun-Chronicle all Star team positions this year were Danielle and starting sophomore forward Sherry Antaya. Antaya finished first for overall points for this season and scored a hattrick in the Sept. 13 King Phillip Game. Honorable mention awards went to Christine Sarro, starting forward for the past three years and this years co-captain, Alicia O'Malley, starting halfback and a four year player at MHS, and Stephanie Holske, starting halfback and outstanding rookie player. The 1984 J.V. team was undefeated and stood high as the number one J.V. team in the Hock. league. The Field Hockey team would like to thank coaches Leda Levine and Laurie Hill for all their successes.

CHEERLEADING CHEERLEADING

On Thursday, November 15, 1984, the Mansfield High School Varsity Cheerleading Squad entered the second annual Hockomock League Cheerleadinga Competition, held at North Attleboro High School. Having placed in several previous competitions over the past few years, and also having captured the second place trophy in last year's competition, the cheerleaders entered this competition with much experience and enthusiasm.Under the leadership of the newly appointed coach, Miss Anne Caovette, and with the experience of senior captains Lisa Videtto and Jenna Carr, the squad practiced for weeks prior to the competition.As the result of much hard work,dedication and determination,our 1984-1985 cheerleaders captured the Hockomock League Championship title and were the victors of a proud first place trophy.Congratulations are in order to the cheerleaders and their coach, for an outstanding cheerleading performance.

BOYS TENNIS BOYS TENNIS BOYS TENNIS

The 1985 Boys Tennis season was highlighted by the outstanding teamwork of its first doubles duo of Alan Tupaj and Jim Fournier,who finished the season with a record of fifteen wins and only three losses. Breaking into the starting line-up as Freshman,Chris Sternlight and David Waters can look forward to successful seasons to come for the next three years.Although getting off to a low start, Steven Tupaj, the team's Co-Captain, and the only Senior, finished off the season fine fashion. The team was also lead by the hard-working Junior CO-Captain and the very competitive first singles player Scott Fiore who has been a starter on the team for three consecutive years.

Poem to the Seniors

Your four years of High School are drawing to a close you'll be missed
by the Juniors more than you will know
We've shared our fun times and maybe a tear or two, thats why the Juniors
feel so very close to you

We wish you much success in whatever you do and hope that all your plans
and dreams really do come true

Heaven is our song and to the Class of "85" we dedicate our Prom.

"YOU CAN'T GET THERE FROM HERE."

"You'll be sorry."
"Never happen."
"Why bother?"
"Be cool."
"Play it safe."
"It'll never work."
"Leave well enough alone."

Conventional wisdom. Sometimes, it seems, all that is heard is a discouraging word.

But as a high school graduate, you have some unconventional opportunities coming up.

Why not shoot for the moon?

The people of The Foxboro Company hope you make it.

MANSFIELD HIGH SCHOOL

MANSFIELD HIGH SCHOOL PHILOSOPHY

Our philosophy at Mansfield High School addresses a two-fold concern: first, what students should learn, acquire, and become for their sakes and for the sake of a democratic society; secondly, what the staff should do to discipline, educate, and inspire students for the good of all. The union of students and staff commitment to such concerns reflects the expectations set forth in our philosophy.

We acknowledge that a vital mission of our school is to help every student to appreciate his or her uniqueness, to realize the extent of his or her aptitudes and to discipline them to the extent of his or her aptitudes and to discipline them to the fullest of his or her ability. Further acknowledging that learning has both an intrinsic and pragmatic value,we encourage students not only to be curious about themselves, but also to be aware of their world. Therefore, we expect our students to develop a sense of self-awareness as well as to get along with other members of society through the exercise of understanding, acceptance and tolerance. In order to meet these expectations, we provide a broad-based curriculum that allows students to mature physically, intellectually, aesthetically, and culturally.

In recognizing that our community -- a community that is experiencing industrial growth and changing values -- has an inherent stake in the educational process, we encourage an active partnership among home, school and community resources.

We believe that students and staff alike must nurture mutual respect and tolerance, must strive for self-discipline and compromise in order to make intelligent choices in preparing for the future. We believe that a student whose mind has been stimulated will continually enjoy the adventure and excitement of acquiring new skills, insights, and ideas; also, the student will benefit by effectively being able to handle the maze of real-life situations which confront him or her. Consequently, we envision our students making decisions that reflect their having realized both their abilities and limitations. As a result, the consequences of such decision-making will imbue them with pride of accomplishment.

MANSFIELD HIGH SCHOOL

OBJECTIVES

To realize our philosophy, we identify the following objectives designed to meet the needs of our students:

1.To provide for the individual characteristics of each learner by supplying learning experiences that take into account the wide range of individual learning rates, interests, styles, abilities, and personal needs.

2.To provide career counseling, vocational planning and other programs which prepare students to entor the work. force successfully.

3.To develop abilities in a student to make responsible choices for which he or she is accountable; to offer both curricular and extra-curricular opportunities whereby a student can encounter decision-making experiences.

4.To promote through a wide range of planned experiences the physical, social, cultural, intellectual, and emotional growth of each student.

5.To provide structured activities and classroom instruction which assist our students to take their place as responsible citizens in an ever-changing democratic society.

6.To present to the students both values and diverse value systems so that they will be able to select among them those which will be helpful to determine who they are, where they are going, and why.

7.To provide those learning experiences which motivate students to strive for accomplishment, to achieve maximum potential, and to recognize their limitations.

8.To stimulate an awareness in students of their need to survive future demands and challenges by stresseing that education is a continuous process -- one that should be an integral part of their life-time experiences.
